

Are We Willing?

Traveling always teaches us new things. Over the past six months, I have become increasingly aware of how much 'lostness' there is in our world. What makes our work seem so enormous is when you talk with someone from a different religion with different customs, languages, and culture, and know there is probably not a single Christian working with them. When you stop to think of how many people do not have a single Christian influence in their lives, it can be crushing.

What does it take to reach them for Christ? It takes individuals who are willing to give up their comforts, their pleasures, their families, and even their lives... to GO. It takes prayer from those back 'home.' It takes financial resources to reach those in need, to clothe them, to feed them and to love them.

Being gone makes me appreciate all the more the freedoms we have living where we live. And how grateful we are for each of you who supports our work.

Being able to sit down with friends overseas, who we know will not be in Heaven when they die, is difficult. But the fact that we are there with them, in their most difficult situations, gives hope that they will one day accept salvation. Overseas work is not for everyone, but I believe everyone does need to be involved. Our friends need to know that they have not been left alone. They need to know people are praying for them, people are supporting them and their voice is being heard. There is so much work still to do.

If you are not supporting overseas efforts on a regular basis, I want to ask you to please consider helping us. A commitment of $30 per month will help us to walk through doors that have already opened to us. God has given us an incredible staff that is willing to do whatever is asked. We need your help in reaching those in need.

Dominican Republic Update

We have started the process of a drilling a new well in Carrera de Palma. This well will impact many families and individuals, including the kids that come to the after school program daily. We are thankful to every donor who gave and prayed that God would make this happen.

We will update with photos via our social media and our monthly DR emails. The project in the DR continues to thrive, welcoming over 40 people this summer that will help make an investment that will have a lasting impact on the community.
